Teachers, Board Still Unable To Reach Contract Agreement

By Evelyn Atkins

Last year's passage of a $45-million bond issue, and the consequent beginning of the proposed renovation/restructuring projects, have left Romulus Community Schools poised on the brink of a new era in education. But though the more distant future glows bright with the promise of a giant step forward into twenty-first century technology, more immediate progress may grind to a halt if teachers and the District cannot agree to contract terms.

For the past four years, Romulus teachers have worked without a contract and, periodically during that time, they have tried to force the issue with the Board by using tactics such as "work to rule" policies (refusal to perform any "extras" — paid or otherwise — over and above basic teaching responsibilities), "blackboard flu" epidemics, and mock funerals mourning the death of education.

In recent weeks, picketing teachers have been visible on at least two occasions. Once, at the Wayne County Intermediate School District building on Van Born, teachers set up picket lines on a day scheduled for an "in-service" (paid) training session concerning new computer systems already being installed in some schools. That day, four teachers who defied their union by crossing the picket line were reportedly greeted by derogatory comments from their colleagues.

When teachers picketed at Wick Elementary last Wednesday, I talked with some of them in an attempt to learn more about their contract demands and the "climate" surrounding contract negotiations. A few of them talked to me "off the record," and it was soon apparent that four years of dissension between schools, teachers, and parents has left many teachers frustrated, and some feeling bitter as well. One teacher, when asked how he felt about accusations that the teachers are more concerned with money than children, replied that some people want teachers to behave like professionals, but don't want to treat them as such.

No specifics were discussed concerning contract demands. At one point, a teacher representative agreed to call me at a later date to discuss teacher demands in more detail; so far, however, no such contact has been made.

Dr. William M. Bedell, Superintendent of Schools, was also contacted regarding the progress of contract negotiations.

Bedell confirmed that no agreement has been reached, but stated that negotiations may continue on Thursday if a State mediator is available for a meeting. □

Local Boy Dies in Accident

Romulus Police are still investigating the death of nine-year-old Timothy Farkas, who was struck by a motorcycle last Friday at approximately 12:50 p.m.

According to witnesses, Farkas and two of his friends were riding their bicycles across Leroy at Grove Land when a westbound motorcyclist travelling at an extremely high rate of speed struck the boy broadside, killing him instantly.

The driver, a 19-year-old neighbor whose name has not yet been released by police, was taken to the hospital after the accident but discharged later that day.

Officer Rick Schwartz told The Romulus News that the case may go to the prosecutor's office this week. Charges could vary from manslaughter (a 15-year felony) to negligent homicide (a two-year misdemeanor), depending upon the prosecutor's decision. □

Museum's Grand Opening

The grand opening of the Romulus Historical Museum (located on Hunt in downtown Romulus) is slated for Sunday, September 8, from 12 to 5 p.m. The opening is sponsored by the Romulus Historical Society and the Romulus Historical Commission.

Among the various events to be held on the grounds will be a ribbon-cutting ceremony (at 1 p.m.), a performance of Indian dancing, demonstrations of various early American crafts (spinning, weaving, etc.), a dulcimer music performance, and a dance demonstration by the Rustic Village Square Dancers. The Museum donor plaque will be on display inside the building.

Admission is free, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Quilting Bee a Success

The Romulus Recreation Department's recent All-night Quilting Bee gave many local ladies a chance to finish up that needlework project that had lain neglected in the sewing basket for so long.

Participants worked into the wee hours of the morning, enjoying the old-time pleasure of creating a treasure while gossiping with friends. Pizza and coffee kept the bunch fortified.

Instructor for the evening was Judi Frederick of Romulus, who will also be teaching the quilting class which begins at the Recreation building in October. □

Drawing Benefits 10-year-old

By Tom Shamanski

He plays softball on a Romulus Recreation Department team; he's an avid collector of baseball cards (bagging a $350 "Robin Yount" from a garbage bag given to him by his cousin!); he hates cleaning his room.

He's 10-year-old Jason Orme and, as indicated, he's a pretty typical kid for his age. What's not so typical about Jason is that, at the age of five, he was diagnosed as leukemic.

When contacted recently, Jason's mother, Sandy Vlaz, 30, said that doctors have assured her that Jason no longer has cancerous cells in his body. He must, however, undergo three more years of chemotherapy.

A 50/50 drawing will be held at the Red Lion Pub (located in the Comfort Inn at 9510 Middle Belt) on September 7 at 8 p.m. The proceeds will go to Jason's family for them to use as they deem appropriate. The event is being co-sponsored by the Romulus Police Department and the Belleville Moose, with Romulus policemen Mike St. Andre, Tom Ellis, Mike Liebert, and Lowell Smith spearheading the drawing. Tickets may be purchased from any Romulus policeman or from any member of Jason's family.

"Jason's a typical 10-year-old," said Vlaz. "You can't hold him down!" This is an amazing statement, considering what Jason has been through. After his diagnosis at five, he endured steady doses of chemotherapy that, after three years, finally seemed to lick the disease.

"Then," Vlaz continued, "this past January, Jason was discovered to have a small pocket of cancerous cells in one of his testicles." After a series of radiation treatments, the leukemia was eradicated from his body. He's currently in the three-year follow-up chemotherapy mentioned earlier.

Jason was "pretty shook up" when the cancer reemerged. But now, Vlaz stated, he's back to himself and takes the whole thing "with a grain of salt."

Jason and his mom have been trying to get to a Detroit Tiger game this season because, as Vlaz put it, "He's really into baseball." Meanwhile, they have been bike-riding together and "shooting hoop" in their backyard.

Vlaz wished to thank everyone for their help, their prayers, and their thoughts: "Jason's father, Walter Orme; my husband, Dane; and all of Jason's grandparents, aunts, uncles, and teachers have been just terrific."

"There's a special lady named Annie Hadyniak that I'd like to especially thank. When her son, Jordan, got leukemia last November, we talked and talked. She and I are like a mini-support group for each other."

On Jason: "I'm extremely proud of Jason because, with everything he's been through, he's still a loving kid with a good sense of humor."

Romulus Profile: Diane Hazen

By Tom Shamanski

Twenty-one years ago, when Head Librarian Diane Hazen first stepped into the old, downtown Romulus library, she was greeted by a note which read, in part, "If stove goes out, let it cool off before relighting—otherwise, it may blow up." Despite this somewhat ominous beginning, Hazen has not only persisted as Romulus's head librarian, but, further, has instituted several new programs designed to help and enrich Romulus citizens, especially the children.

When asked about current Library usage, Hazen, who holds a University of Michigan master's degree in library science, stated, "I wish the people of Romulus would use the Library more. There's lots of good information here, plus, through out computer system, we also have access to 59 other libraries within the Wayne/Oakland Library Federation."

Then, Hazen spoke to her career and how she arrived at her Romulus position: "I started as a children's librarian in Farmington. After a year and three months, I moved to Trenton in the same capacity." She went on to explain how she spent three years in Trenton and then was transferred to Romulus as a head librarian. After one year in the old library, she moved to the new, and present, library in June, 1971.

"I came to Romulus to build up the book collection and increase patronage as well," she said. And so she has—and in an impressive fashion. From 13,000 books that were moved to the new building, Hazen has increased that number to a weighty 46,000.

Concerning usage at that time, she stated that there were no library programs in progress when she arrived in Romulus. Friends of the Library was among the first programs she started; it continues today.

"I also started the Senior Citizen Club," she stated. "I'm happy to say that the Club is still active, and expanding as well." The Historical Society is another Hazen program. The Society will soon celebrate its 10-year anniversary, she said with a smile.

Perhaps one of the most effective community outreach programs that Hazen initiated began when she obtained a grant to purchase a Dodge van and had the van converted to a bookmobile.

"We were able to reach a lot of people with the Bookmobile," she said, still smiling. Elaborating, she said that the Bookmobile went to schools and also served shut-ins and seniors. Unfortunately, around 1980, the Bookmobile ground to a halt as a result of budget cuts.

It was these same cuts that were responsible for a reduction in staff and a substantial loss of money to purchase books. Now, however, Mayor Beverly McAnally is very supportive and the Library is able to obtain more money, Hazen said. In 1987, she was able to hire a full-time children's librarian, a move which freed Hazen to concentrate on other projects.

We spoke of computers: "One of the biggest things I've been involved with here is getting our library computers on-line with the other 59 libraries in the Federation," Hazen said. "It took us three years to complete the automation, but it's been well worth the time. The computers save a lot of time and everything is more efficient and accurate."

Along with Romulus residents, others who benefit from the computers are staff members Kim Potter, Children's Librarian; Frances Zilka, who knows and helps with everything in the Library; newly hired Shelly Delao, Library Aide; and students Krista Noblett and Linda Ditsch, who serve as library pages. An unofficial staff member is Hazen's mother, Joyce, who started her library career in 1931. Since her retirement in 1970, she has volunteered at Romulus three hours each day.

When asked, Hazen has a number of Library goals she would like to achieve: "Basically, I'd like to increase Library usage. If I had the budget money, I'd extend our hours and begin another community outreach program as we had with the Bookmobile."

She would also like to make her teacher's loan collection more visible (collections of approximately 30 books each to be used exclusively by children's teachers). In addition, Hazen would like to build a parent/teacher collection that would consist of books for anyone who works with children.

Audio and video tape collections are other things Hazen would like to see happen. Currently available are some nonfiction and "how-to" tapes. She also has plans for starting a clipping file, which will consist solely of business information.

* * *

At this point, we paused and took a short stroll around the Library. One eye-catcher is an Olympia-brand typewriter. As the machine was here when Hazen came to Romulus, and as it simply looks old, she estimates it to be "perhaps 40 years old." The typewriter works well and is often used by students who have no access to other machines. Also, near the main desk, there's a cardboard box used as a "coupon file." Hazen said that the file "disappears" occasionally and, when it reappears, it will have been updated.

Operation Jump Start: A Student Readiness Workshop

Did you know that 50% of all incoming freshmen drop out of school? That 30% of all Romulus students never graduate from high school? That 15% of Romulus High School students are absent daily and are not able to keep up with class assignments? That 27% of our students work below their ability or potential? That only a small percentage of our students set their goals to pursue higher levels of education?

Romulus High School, under the direction of Principal Thomas Dolan, has implemented an exciting new program that will enhance its "at-risk" students' abilities to become more capable and effective students. "Operation Jump Start - a Student Readiness Workshop" will help 55 "at-risk" students, mostly incoming freshmen, to develop a 10-point plan for achieving academic success. The program began August 19 and will continue through August 29.

Students participating in Operation Jump Start will be involved in a series of workshops and classes that will build positive self-esteem and reinforce basic math and English skills.

Students will also attend workshops in peaceful conflict resolution, high school adjustment, and resisting negative peer pressure. Students will view a play sponsored by the Minor Crisis Theater Troupe and have an opportunity to hear a speech by the Honorable Supreme Court Justice Conrad L. Mallett, Jr., on Wednesday, August 28.

Additionally, students will be instructed in how to improve or develop study and test-taking skills, active listening skills, and effective decision-making. Workshop participants will also be taught student responsibility as well as goal setting and performance evaluation. The program is based on the premise that schools, parents, and students must work together to plan success, not react to failure. Accordingly, parents of participants attended an orientation on Monday, August 19.

To help students maintain their primary focus on academics, the Romulus Adolescent Health Center, which is located in the High School, will provide an optional medical assessment to Operation Jump Start participants. The Health Center provides supportive services to residents of Romulus ages 10 through 21. Services include health screenings, treatment for minor illnesses or injuries, school and sports physicals, nutritional advice, and substance-abuse counseling. The Health Center also assists students with other daily stresses such as peer pressure, personal relationship difficulties, and depression. □

We visited the multipurpose room behind the main desk: "Any group can use the room," Hazen said. "Currently, the only groups using the room on a permanent basis are Friends of the Library, the Historical Society, and various tutors." She also mentioned that the Library has a FAX machine for public use (outgoing only).

Our tour completed, I wondered about Hazen's family. Her aforementioned mother, Joyce, lives in Westland, and Hazen has a stepdaughter, Carol, who lives in Tucson, Arizona. Carol has one son, Al, who's three, and is expecting another baby on September 1. (Writer's note: Let's hope that the baby's not "overdue.") Hazen's late husband, Charles (Chuck) died in 1989. At different times, he worked for the City of Trenton, the State of Michigan, and the City of Romulus.

And how does Hazen spend her leisure time? "First of all, I take care of my animals." I learned that this is no easy task, as she has 30 geese, 17 ducks, and "some chickens." She also has a dog. At times, Hazen has brought some geese to the Library for Children's Story Hour. . . . The venture has worked well.

"I also like rug-hooking and any other needle craft. Of course, I read, but much of that is connected with my job. When pleasure-reading, I'll read just about anything. I enjoy all subjects."

Hazen, who presently lives on Hannan Road, remarked, "I enjoy Romulus and the people of Romulus. I wouldn't have moved here if I didn't." The thought then occurred to me that Romulus is indeed fortunate that Diane Hazen does like it here. It would certainly be difficult to find a more competent, efficient, and friendly person to serve as Romulus's head librarian. □

Creek Clean-up

The Friends of Ecorse Creek are seeking volunteers to help with their Ecorse Creek Clean-up on September 7. The group hopes that its efforts will rival the established Rouge River clean-up campaigns held each year.

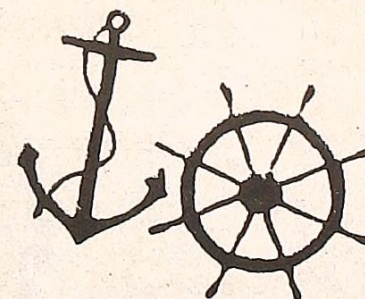

Six cities will participate: Allen Park, Dearborn Heights, Lincoln Park, Melvindale, Romulus, and Taylor.

Romulus volunteers will register at a site on Middle Belt (about one-quarter mile north of Smith Road) at 7:30 a.m. on September 7, and assist in the clean-up from 8 to 11 a.m. Later, at 1 p.m., a luncheon will be served at Swapka Park (Dearborn Heights). Call Jeffrey Martell, Community Development Coordinator for the City of Romulus, for more information.

Ecorse Creek floodwaters contain concentrations of several toxic materials at levels higher than allowed by the DNR or EPA for body contact. □

IS THE KEY TO OUR FUTURE

"Your Children Are Our Greatest Concern"
 Romulus Community Schools
 Board of Education and Staff

Latchkey Program

Is child care before and after school a problem? This may be the answer. The Romulus School District will begin a latchkey program on September 4 for the District's elementary students. Two sites will be in operation: Merriman Elementary on the south side of Romulus and Wick Elementary on the north side.

Merriman will also service Barth and Halecreek; Wick will also service Cory. Parents will drop off and pick up their children at their school's operating site. Students will be transported to and from their respective schools for instruction.

The centers will open at approximately 7 a.m. and operate in the afternoon until approximately 6 p.m. Call 941-0610 for information. □

St. Aloysius

Friday, August 30, thru

The St. Aloysius Labor Day Weekend Festival will be held at St. Aloysius Catholic Church (11280 Ozga Road, Romulus) on Friday, August 30, from 6 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Saturday, August 31, from 4 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Sunday, September 1, from 12 p.m. to 12 a.m.; and Monday, September 2, from 1 to 9 p.m. The event will feature something for everyone, and everyone is invited to come and join in the fun.

Highlights of the Festival include:
Las Vegas Games

Come out and try your luck at the Las Vegas Tent, which boasts a roulette wheel, a big six wheel, and 15 blackjack tables. Betting varies from a minimum of $1 to a maximum of $5 (with a maximum winnings per person per day of $500), and blackjack pays double! Of course, all players must be at least 18 years old. The Las Vegas Tent will be open Friday from 7 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Saturday from 6 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Sunday from 3 p.m. to 12 a.m.; and Monday from 3 to 9 p.m.

BINGO!

St. Aloysius School will be the recipient of all proceeds from this year's 50/50 BINGO games. (Half of the income goes to the school; the other half will be paid out in prizes.) Cards are two for a quarter each game. The BINGO Tent will be open on Friday from 6 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Saturday from 4 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Sunday from 12 p.m. to 12 a.m.; and Monday from 1 to 9 p.m.

Raffles

Again this year, ticket buyers can choose between the 50/50 Hourly Raffle ($1 tickets; cash prizes of half the money from each hour's sales) and the $2 Raffle (three large prizes: $2,000, $1,000, and $500). Better yet, why not buy tickets for both?

Entertainment

A wide variety of bands will provide free entertainment at this year's festival: the Klancnik Brothers (Friday, 7 to 11 p.m.), the Polka Towners Chapter 2 (Saturday, 7 to 11 p.m.), Pan Franek, Zosia & the Polka Towners (Sunday, 2 to 6 p.m.), Heart & Soul (Sunday, 7 to 11 p.m.), and the Duane Malinowski Polka Jamboree (Monday, 3 to 9 p.m.). Come out and dance the night away!

Arcade/Games

Whether you're young, "young at heart," or in between, you'll find plenty of fun at this year's arcade. A combina-

The City of Riverview hosted this year's Downriver Senior Olympics, held August 5 through August 9, and 20 Romulus senior citizens competed in the categories of baking, billiards, bowling, bocce ball, euchre, golf, golf (closest to the pin), pinochle, ping pong, and the softball throw. Following the games, an awards banquet was held at Thomas Crystal Gardens in Southgate, where medals were awarded to the following seniors representing the City of Romulus: Class A (ages 50 to 59) – Ruth Curley (gold, bowling) and Effie Kainz (bronze, bowling); Class B (ages 60 to 69) – Louise Bowen (silver, golf – closest to the pin); and Class C (ages 70 to 79) – John Bowen (gold, ping pong; bronze, bowling; and bronze, softball), Paul Dorman (gold, bocce ball), and Evelyne Foisie (bronze, bowling). – Barbara Schultz tion of new games and old favorites will feature something for everyone!

Crafts

Twenty eight-foot tables will be covered with everything from Christmas gifts to baked goods at this year's craft display. Come on out and get a jump on your holiday shopping!

Food...

Of course, there'll be plenty of delicious food! Visit the Dining Room on Sunday between 12 and 6 p.m. and enjoy homemade chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, stuffing, tomatoes, cucumbers, green beans, rolls, dessert, and other delicious food ($6 for adults, $3 for kids, and $1.50 for tots under five), and then come back on Monday between 1 and 6 p.m. for spaghetti, salad, rolls, and leftovers from Sunday ($4 for adults, $2 for kids, and $1 for tots under five). Or, if you're craving more "traditional" carnival food, stop by Hamburger Villa and feast on hamburgers, hot dogs, kielbasa, pizza, chips, coffee, and pop. Dig in!

...and Drink

This year's Spirit Tent will serve canned pop and popcorn in addition to beer, wine, and wine coolers. Of course, you must be at least 21 years old to purchase alcohol.

Don't Forget To Say "Thanks"

The repeated success of the annual St. Aloysius Romulus Festival is the result of a lot of hard work performed by many dedicated people. So while you're out enjoying yourself, take the time to thank those volunteers who make the event so special: Tony LaRoche (advertising chairman); Kris Moe and Dave Rakotz (finance chairman and co-chairman); Bill Tatman, Doug Geersens, and Joe Ozog (Vegas games chairmen); Alex McCraight and Mel Genaw (BINGO chairmen); Richard Dick and Chuck Noel ($2 raffle chairmen); Alyce Foley (hourly 50/50 raffle chairman); Ray Blanchard (entertainment chairman); Karen Geraghty (arcade chairman); Diane Zaleski and Karen Charkiewicz (crafts chairman and co-chairman); Josephine Moleda (kitchen chairman); Mary Ann Ryznar (dining room chairman); Chuck Shonta (Hamburger Villa chairman); Dennis Farmer and Bill Sovinski (spirit tent chairman and co-chairman); and the many, many others who helped the chairmen achieve such spectacular results. □

Port Side

Fall Salmon Run To Snag Anglers; Pinks Are Back

Editor's note: Since Captain Ron is currently fishing in New York, this issue's "Port Side" column comes from Freel, Cain and Kirk at AAA Michigan, One Auto Club Drive, Dearborn

If predictions hold true, salmon steaks should soon crowd refrigerators as anglers gear up for this fall's annual spawning runs.

Added to the regular harvest of coho and chinook this year will be their smaller cousin, the pink salmon, which makes its biennial return to home rivers, AAA Michigan reports.

Fisheries biologists with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) generally predict coho catches will equal the "good" harvest of last year, while some charterboat captains say the chinook yield will top those of "the last four or five years."

The best Lake Michigan yields of both coho and chinook are expected off Leland, Frankfort, Manistee, and Ludington, and in the Platte, Betsie, Manistee, Pere Marquette, Sable, and St. Joseph rivers.

Lake Huron chinook harvests should be strongest in the Au Sable River below Foote Dam and in the big lake off Oscoda and Harrisville. The coho fishery is negligible.

All agree the pink salmon run will be light, with most of the action in Lake Superior, northern Lake Huron, and the St. Marys river system in the Upper Peninsula. The strongest yields are expected at DeTour in the southeast corner of the UP this month and next, and then will move north to Sault Ste. Marie through October.

Authorities shy away from guessing the number — 500,000 is banded about — of anglers who will head out to the Great Lakes in August and September, and then to tributaries through October in search of the challenging fish. They prefer to measure fishing pressure in "angler hours."

In 1989, the last year for which complete figures are available, there were 13 million hours spent chasing salmon, averaging between two and 2.5 hours per angler.

With some exceptions, all salmon anglers will need the $9.85 annual fishing license plus a $9.85 trout/salmon stamp, totalling $19.70.

Snagging with artificial baits or unweighted hooks is permitted in designated sections of the Sable, Pere Marquette, and Big Manistee rivers between September 10 and October 25. Snaggers require the annual license plus a $7.35 snagging license, but not a trout/salmon stamp.

Bolstering the "cautious optimism" of good coho and chinook action is the continuing decline in the Bacterial Kidney Disease (BKD) that mysteriously appeared in 1989.

While it is still a problem, there has been a marked improvement this year, according to the DNR, whose experts don't know the cause of BKD, but report incidence of the disease is down as much as 50% over past years.

Special training is required to detect the disease, but the DNR says that there is "no problem" in eating the fish.

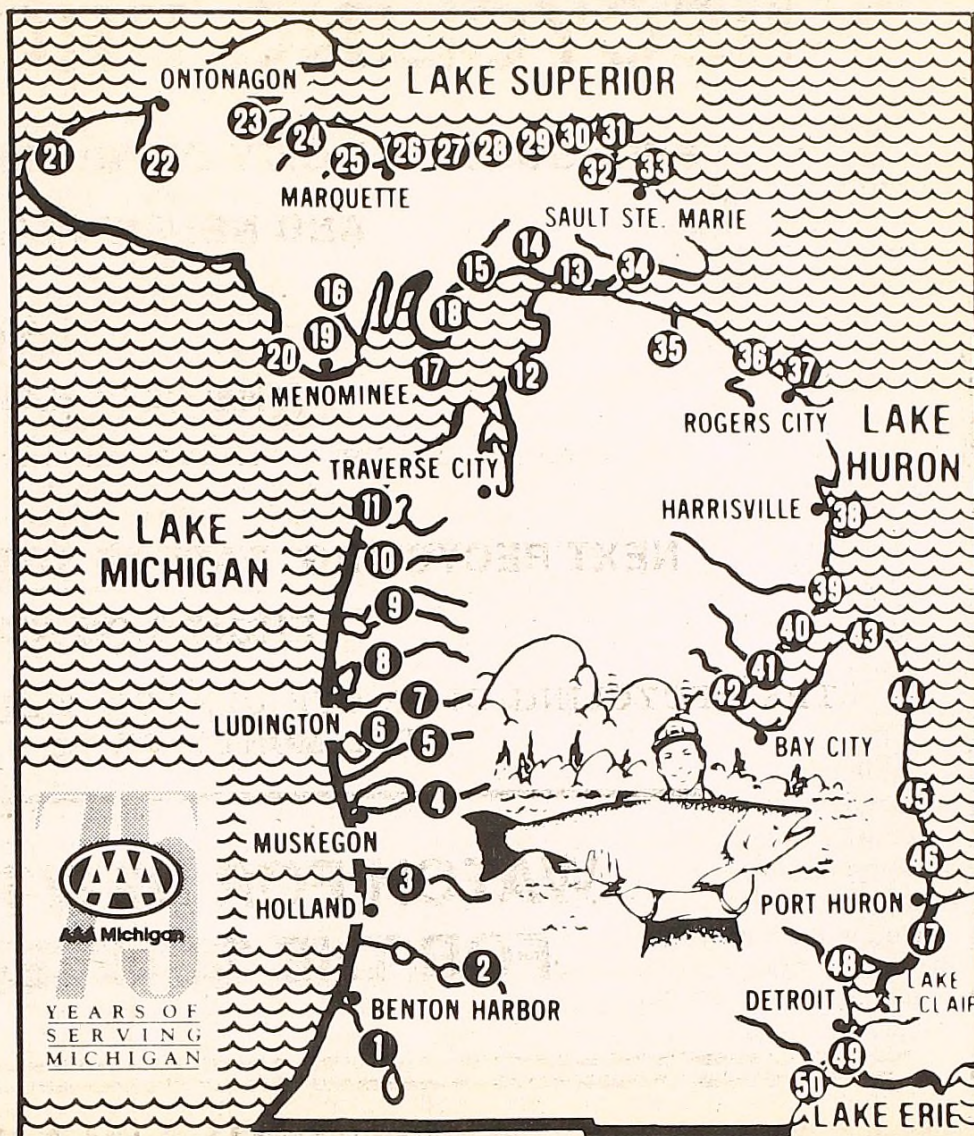

Chinook and cohos were introduced into the Great Lakes in the 1960s, the eggs coming from Pacific Ocean salmon, and are maintained with annual stream stocking programs. The DNR plants between four and five million chinook each spring; between two and three million coho.

Pinks are not planted. They escaped during a research project north of Lake Superior in Ontario, Canada, in the early 1970s, gradually working their way into Lake Huron and then Lake Michigan.

Chinook generally weigh in the 12- to 13-pound range, although some are now being taken up to 35 pounds; coho, five to six pounds; and pink, two pounds.

The DNR said anglers concerned about contaminants in catches should filet, skin, and trim the fat along the edges and center of the filets, removing fatty portions where contaminants are concentrated. The fish should then be baked, broiled, or grilled, allowing remaining fat to drip off. □

Carnival Doctors

By Tom Shamanski

There must be some good doctors in this world; the problem is that it's harder finding one than playing jump rope with a rattlesnake. Oh, this is not to say that ALL doctors have webbed feet, folks; it's just that the ones I run into seem to swim well and have feathers.

My latest doctor fiasco came as a result of my changing health insurance companies. The new company assigned me to a Dr. Crackers. I thought it would be a good idea to meet her and also have a physical exam.

Early one morning, I found myself progressing beyond the BIG waiting room to the LITTLE waiting room. You know the little one. It's where you're alone and sitting on a table, swinging your feet while looking at the walled anatomy chart with great interest. Of course, you refrain from scratching and drooling because you're probably being watched by a hidden camera.

Suddenly, a white-covered lady enters and says, "So, how are we today?" I smile and nod, not committing myself one way or the other.

She continues, "And why are we here today?" Now, this is somewhat tricky to answer as I know why I'm there, but I can't say anything for sure about her.

Soon, as she's taking my temperature and pulse, giving me an EKG, and asking if I'm an organ donor, I'm telling her I'm basically there to meet her. Smiling, she tells me she's very flattered, but, alas, she's not the doctor. "DOCTOR will be in shortly."

She leaves; I wait. Momentarily, I slide off the table and begin studying the anatomy chart again. I find it's amazing what strange processes our food goes through after we swallow it. Then I find myself thinking that perhaps I'll fast for a week or two. Soon, another white-covered lady enters the room.

"Good morning, I'm Dr. Crackers. How come you're not sitting on the table? You know that's basic doctor/patient/waiting room protocol, don't you?"

Mumbling my apologies, I climb back on the table and begin grinding my teeth and stuttering in my thoughts; the muscle in my left cheek is bouncing like most of my checks.

"I see you've got medical insurance through a traveling carnival. How did that happen?"

"It was easy," I replied. "I broke three out of four balloons and they let me sign up. Believe it or not, I'm covered for ingrown toenails that originate either in Norway or Arkansas.

Pretty good plan, huh?"

"Right," she agrees. "But how about you pay me cash and submit the bill to your insurance company?"

Well, that seemed a bit unorthodox and inconvenient, but I agreed. Then Crackers left the room to fetch my EKG results.

Upon returning, she asked, "What would you say if I told you that you've had a slight heart attack sometime in the past?"

My eyes widened and my mouth flopped open; I began panting. I was scared as a pony seeing a 400-pound man heading its way. Then, of course, I realized that the doc must be testing me... checking my reaction time, or something.

But, as she continued staring at me and frowning, too, I suddenly sensed that she wasn't kidding. Keeping my cool, I ran screaming and yelling out of her office to the nearest hospital to be hooked up to a 24-hour heart monitor.

Later that night, after calming a bit, I finally figured out when I must have had my attack. Two years before, I was playing marbles with Sam Burger, our 10-year-old neighborhood bully, out in front of the local pool hall. While I was busily concentrating on my next shot, Sam slid into the pool hall and returned with a cue ball. Of course, using the cue ball as his shooter, he beat me worse than Jane Pauley beat NBC. When the guys from the pool hall came out and began teasing me, I broke into a cold sweat and felt a pain in my chest. Later, Baltimore Bruce told me that Burger had hit me in the chest with the cue ball... but I never believed him.

Anyway, a week later, I called the DOCTOR. Naturally, she wouldn't come to the phone, but the person who cleaned the exam rooms told me not to worry. The monitor showed no heart problems whatsoever. Her, I believed.

So, I dropped Dr. Crackers as my family physician. It was, in part, because of her misdiagnosis. However, the main reason is that it makes me madder than Bill Bonds when he's missed the last boat to Boblo when a DOCTOR won't come to the phone.

Soon, I phoned my medical insurance people and told them I needed a new physician. So, I now have a Dr. Barker who treats me. Actually, Barker's a full-time carnival person who hawks people into seeing the world's only double-decker, two-headed turtle. But he freelances as a doctor and hasn't told me once that I've had a heart attack in my past. Him, I believe. □

Your Bond Dollars at Work

By Art McPharlin, Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent, Romulus Community Schools

Since November 6, 1990, your school district has been working long and hard to accomplish the promise we made to you prior to the successful bond proposal of that date. As of September 1, 1991, the following expenditures have been approved by your board of education.

- Barth, Halecreek, and Wick elementary schools' remodeling costs are on budget at $4,900,000. Technology costs of $1.3 million per school include Apple computers, the Jostens Learning System, the multimedia system, and furniture.
- The remodeling and additions at Merriman and Cory schools will begin early in October and are projected to cost $3.6 million. The technology costs should be $1.3 million per school.

- The construction of our new athletic facility at the High School and the renovation of the athletic facilities at the Junior High School should also begin in early October. These costs are projected at $7 million.
- Phase Two of this project is the complete renovation of both the Junior High and High School. These are currently being designed and are projected to be complete by September 1993 at a total cost estimated at $27 million. □

Romulus Adult Education

Romulus Adult Education now offers the most comprehensive package of support services for adult students that is available in this area. Free transportation for students, combined with free day care, free high school completion, and free GED classes/testing, makes it possible for nearly all non-graduates to be able to attend classes. Buses will stop at several pick-up spots (locations to be determined in September) around the City.

Day students can also take advantage of free child care for children between the ages of 18 months and school age. My Friends and Me Child Care Center is located in the Adult Education Center and has gained a reputation as one of the finest facilities in the area. More information regarding child care can be obtained by calling the director, Kathy Darnell, at 941-2030.

A high school diploma or GED certificate is essential to finding a good job in today's world.

Wings & Wheels Lounge Returns to Country

Wings & Wheels Lounge (formerly the Middlebelt Bar) is returning to the Country music format that made it a favorite among Country music fans. The recent remodeling will also be welcomed by those "regulars" who missed their Country music.

Larry Lee Adkins & the Hanging Tree kicked off the format change with two weekends of solid, new and traditional sounds. They were well received by those in the audience, including long-time fans of Larry.

Presently bringing its own brand of music to Wings & Wheels is Shiloh.

Suzanne K. Hurt gives the songs the strong vocal renditions familiar to those who have seen her, and the "real" acoustic piano lends a different sound to a band gaining its own reputation among local Country bands.

Shiloh looks forward to seeing those who have been so supportive in the past.

The owners of Wings & Wheels want to welcome back their Country music fans, and are offering $1 drink specials every band break and special party dates to be announced in the future. □

2nd Annual Scholar-Athlete Golf Outing

The second annual Scholar-Athlete Golf Outing will be held Saturday, October 12, at the Shady Hollow Golf Course (Wayne Road, Romulus); tee times will range from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.

The Outing will feature a scramble format. Four-person teams in men's and women's divisions (presence of even one male on a team puts that team into the men's division) will compete for prizes.

A $160-per-team fee covers golf, cart, prizes, post-tournament meal, and great fun!

Persons interested in signing up a team should write down the names of four team members and send them, along with a check made payable to Romulus High School (Varsity Club donation), to Fred Coleman, 9650 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, MI 48174.

Call 941-1426 for information. □

Kerr Manufacturing Celebrates 100 Years

Kerr Manufacturing, an international company with headquarters at 28200 Wick Road in Romulus, will celebrate its one-hundredth birthday on Wednesday, August 28, 1991. The company develops and produces various products for dentists and dental laboratories.

The 100-year celebration will be held on Saturday, September 15, from 1 to 5 p.m. Over 400 employees, retirees, and their families will enjoy a picnic, entertainment, and a company tour. □

New Parking Law

Long-term automobile parking at Metro Airport-area hotels and motels is now prohibited under a new ordinance recently adopted by the Romulus City Council. According to Romulus Ordinance Enforcement Director, Steve Banko, the ordinance requires persons staying overnight at Romulus hotels and then flying out to park their cars at commercial parking lots either in the Airport or off-site.

City Council adopted the ordinance after receiving complaints from commercial parking lot operators and Metro Airport officials, who were losing parking lot revenues due to the free parking provided by many of the Area hotels. Romulus officials were also concerned that the free parking service violated the City's zoning ordinance, which provides standards for commercial parking facilities. Both the City and County governments were also losing revenues in that the hotels were not collecting the required Airport-area parking surcharge fee.

Ordinance Director Banko said that individuals parking in the lots who are not registered guests for using the hotel meeting rooms or restaurants may have their vehicles tagged and impounded. Hotel operators who permit long-term Airport parking in violation of the ordinance are also subject to being cited by the ordinance enforcement department. □

AAA Annual Drink Contest

Thanks to Freel, Cain and Haldane at AAA Michigan, One Auto Club Drive, Dearborn, for submitting the following information

Contestants still have time to enter a nonalcoholic drink recipe and win $1,000 in AAA Michigan's eleventh annual "Zero-proof Mix-off," but entries must be postmarked by September 13 to qualify.

"A Bavarian Holiday" is the theme for the contest, which spotlights AAA Michigan's "First a Friend, Then a Host" alcohol-awareness campaign during Christmas and New Year's.

The nonalcoholic drink best capturing the mood and feeling of Bavaria's castles, snow-capped mountains, and festivals earns its creator $1,000. Cash prizes also will be awarded for second through fourth place.

Drinks will be rated on taste, appearance, originality of name, and adherence to the theme. Winning recipes will be featured in the 1991 "Great Pretenders Party Guide" distributed free Statewide in December. Preliminary judging of entries will be done at AAA Michigan headquarters. Twenty finalists will compete in person at the mix-off on October 3 at the Bavarian Inn in Frankenmuth.

Mail entries to: "Zero-proof Mix-off," AAA Michigan Public Relations, One Auto Club Drive, Dearborn, MI 48126. □
